

COMMUNICATING ABOUT CLIMATE

SAVE THE DATE!

THIS PUBLIC PROGRAM WILL FOCUS ON COMMUNICATING ABOUT CLIMATE, specifically, the role communication plays in educating, informing, and persuading publics about climate change. Panelists will also discuss obstacles to communicating about this global issue, from climate change denial to divergent values and attitudes about climate change.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 2019

Reception: 5:00–6:00 p.m. | Program: 6:00–7:30 p.m.

University of Montana
University Center, Room 326/327

MODERATOR

LaKesha N. Anderson

Director of Academic and Professional Affairs, National Communication Association

PANELISTS

Amy Climburg

Executive Director, Climate Smart Missoula

Matthew Frank

Fellow in Regional Journalism, O'Connor Center for the Rocky Mountain West

Peter McDonough

Climate Change Studies Program Coordinator, University of Montana

Nick Mott

Producer, Threshold

Steve Schwarze

Professor, Department of Communication Studies and Director, Climate Change Studies Program, University of Montana

Please RSVP at <https://www.natcom.org/calendar/communicating-about-climate>.

A PUBLIC PROGRAM OF THE NATIONAL COMMUNICATION ASSOCIATION
Co-Sponsored by the University of Montana Department of Communication Studies and the University of Montana Climate Change Studies Program.

